Indigenous heritage

Passed to Present

Supported by the Research Labs of Archaeology at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill

The Alliance For Heritage Conservation

INHERIT NEWS

The Newsletter of InHerit: Indigenous Heritage Passed to Present

Dear Friends of InHerit,

We are pleased to share our October 2021 newsletter, including updates on our current cultural heritage project, Amplifying Native Voices in North Carolina History, we are conducting in partnership with the Museum of the Southeast American Indian at UNC-Pembroke. We provide some suggested reading inspired by our research on project content. Also included is a link to the most recent issue of The Mayanist, which highlights collaborative archaeology projects in the Maya region and NC. Click on underlined words and phrases for links to additional information.

As always, many thanks to your support.

Sincerely,

Diane L. Slocum, Program Director
Dr. Patricia A. McAnany, Executive Director

THIS ISSUE:

PAGE 1
Welcome

PAGE 2
Amplifying Native Voices Project Update

What to Read

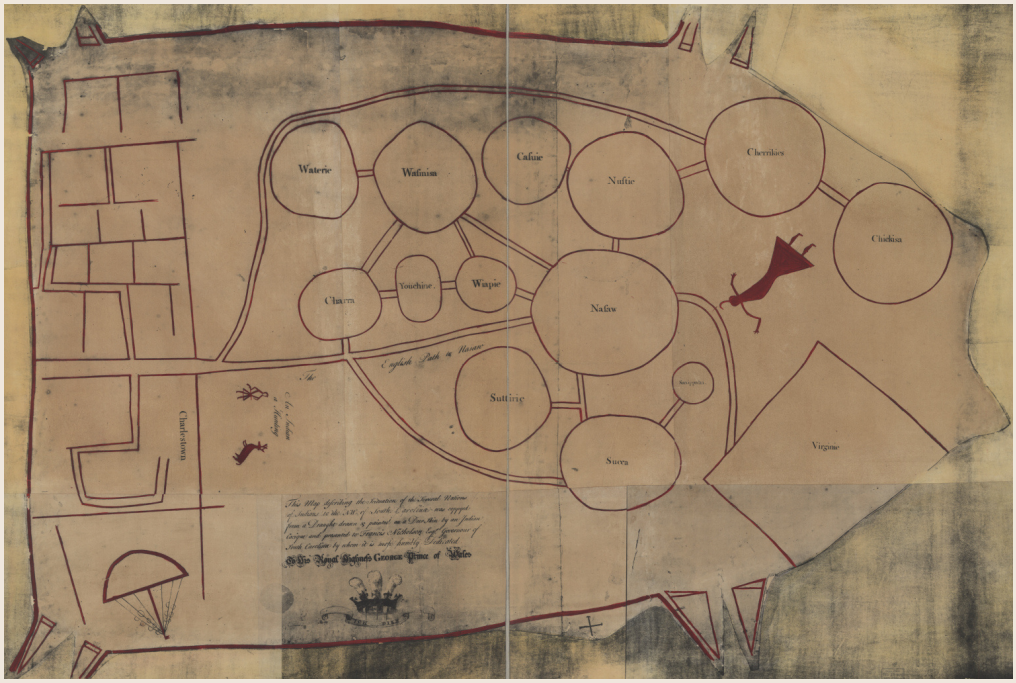
PAGE 3
The Mayanist

Local Business Spotlight

InHerit and Alliance Info

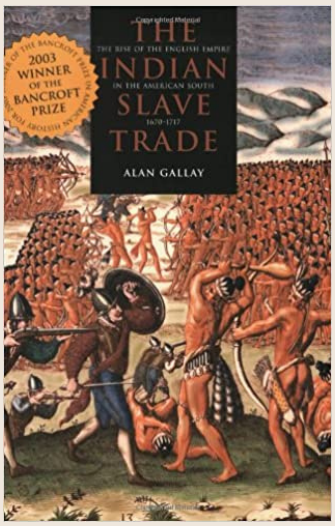
Amplifying Native Voices in NC History Project Update

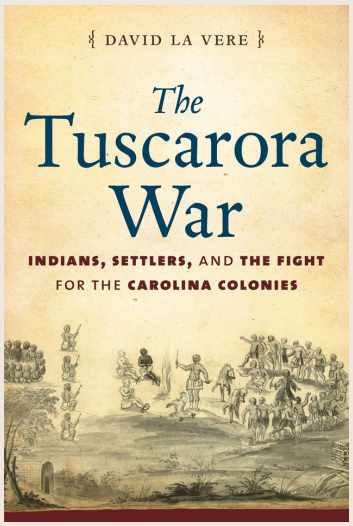
Through our collaboration with the Museum of the Southeast American Indian and North Carolina teachers we explore content for curriculum drawing on colonial-period primary sources.

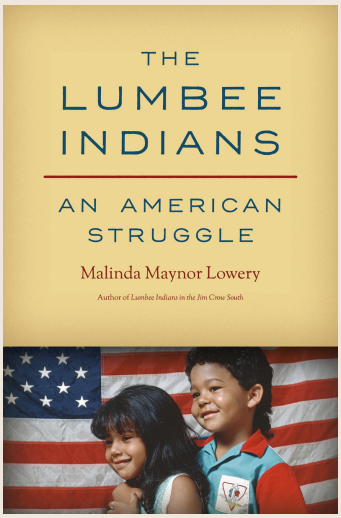


The "Map of the several nations of Indians to the Northwest of South Carolina" or the "Catawba Deer Skin Map" is a colonial-period map authored by Native Americans. Read more at this link.

What to Read: The following books serve as points of reference as we fill in the narrative between 1491 and 1830.







For more information on this project go to this link and scroll down to "current projects".

Z. Smith Reynolds FOUNDATION

North Carolina humanities
All together, amazing.

The Fall 2021 Issue of The Mayanist explores community engaged archaeology in the Maya World (and beyond).

Alliance Board

Patricia A. McAnany

InHerit/Alliance Director

Diane L. Slocum

InHerit/Alliance Program Director

Chairperson
Alicia Ebbitt McGill

Vice Chair
Florence Peacock

Secretary
Barbara Arroyo

Treasurer
Jim Charton

Boardmembers
Nancy Fields
Khristin Montes
Bryan Giemza

Lumbee-owned Business Spotlight: Lumbee Homemade Ice-Cream

Pembroke, NC

Interview with Southern Foodways Alliance

Interested in Supporting InHerit?

100% of your donations support our mission to work together to unearth hidden histories, document and share untold stories, and conserve the material remains of the past to empower people to reshape cultural narratives and affect positive social change.

- Donation links are available at our website and Facebook page.
- You may also support InHerit through AmazonSmile by inserting this link https://smile.amazon.com/ch/27-3995217 when shopping.

Your generous donations to our 501(c)3 partner, the Alliance for Heritage Conservation are tax-deductible.